UNIVERSITY OF THE ARTS

POZNAN

List of courses available for exchange students

Academic year 2024/25

UAP | POZNAN

INTRODUCTION & GENERAL INFORMATION

The Magdalena Abakanowicz University of the Arts Poznan (UAP) is well-known for its open structure that allows students to engage in various kinds of artistic activity. Study plans of particular degree programmes consist of theoretical classes and practical classes taught in studios. Most studios are open for students from different degree programmes and years of study, which allows a constant flux of ideas, enhances creativity and opens students to different points of view.

Exchange students that come to UAP are not restricted only to courses from the faculty that offers their major. Instead, they are allowed to select art or design courses from different faculties. For example, a student majoring in Photography is allowed to select studios of sculpture, graphic design, or intermedia, as far as they meet initial requirements. Selection of courses should, however, be discussed with exchange coordinators at home institutions.

Please note that each studio has a limit of students. If you fail to register in the time specified at the beginning of the semester, you might not be able to join the desired studio once the semester progresses.

In the first two weeks of each semester, Faculty Coordinators will organise tours around studios to familiarise students with their teaching content and provide some practical information (class hours, requirements etc.).

Exchange students are expected to confirm with the UAP International Office the final list of courses within 2 weeks from the beginning of each semester.

The information on ECTS points included in the catalogue applies to Erasmus+ students. For studies within the frames of Study in English programme, the number of ECTS points is derived from study plans.

This catalogue features studios that are likely to operate in the upcoming academic year and are scheduled to be open for international students.

FACULTY OF ANIMATION & INTERMEDIA

Department of Animation

Animation Studio I

Head of Studio:
prof. dr hab. Jacek Adamczak

Tutor:
mgr Paweł Prewencki, as.

Location:
building D / room 4, 103, 106

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

The main goal of subjects taught at Animation Studio I is to shape the individual language of artistic articulation through the animated film, in which the animation process is an essential and creative stage of integration of all means. This goal is achieved by researching and exploring the possibilities of the drawing material and improving the animation process during the implementation of etudes and exercises. Individual research shapes the original character of the studio, which directly influences the expression of the synthesis of visual arts, animation and film. The specific goal is the creative use of modern digital tools, with the original animation process using classical techniques, taking into account the naturalness and diversity of traditional artistic materials. The search for kinetic and semantic possibilities of the material fosters the student to discover his or her own predispositions and individual implementation solutions.

Basic implementation techniques:

- Drawing animation (classic and digital).

FACULTY OF ANIMATION & INTERMEDIA

Animation Studio II

Head of Studio:
dr hab Miłosz Margański, prof. UAP

Tutor:
mgr Paulina Wyrst, as.

Location:
building D / room 4, 104

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

The creative interests of the Animation Studio II include the search for the authorial expression of the film and the use of animation language in the aspect of contemporary media. These media influence animated film, open up new possibilities for the author, allow him to discover new aesthetic values of processed photography, prepared digital recording or other traditional techniques. Animation Studio II is open for students that already have some experience in the field of animation.

Basic implementation techniques:

- Video collage,
- Interactive animation,
- VR,
- Projection mapping.

Animation Studio III

Head of Studio:
prof. dr hab. Maciej Ćwiek

Tutor:
mgr Jakub Baniak

Location:
building D / room, 4

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

Animation Studio III introduces issues related to the specificity of creating an animated image using modern tools (computer, video camera, photo camera). The programme includes design and production of short film and television forms, in which computer animation and digital image processing capabilities play a fundamental role in shaping audiovisual productions.

Basic implementation techniques:

- 2D and 3D computer animation,
- Post-production / VFX.

Location:
building D / room 3, 4, 104, 106

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

Animation Studio IV covers the field of matter animation. The main emphasis of the studio programme is on introducing students to traditional animation techniques. The animation process directly under the camera is the primary goal of understanding the kinetic properties of matter.

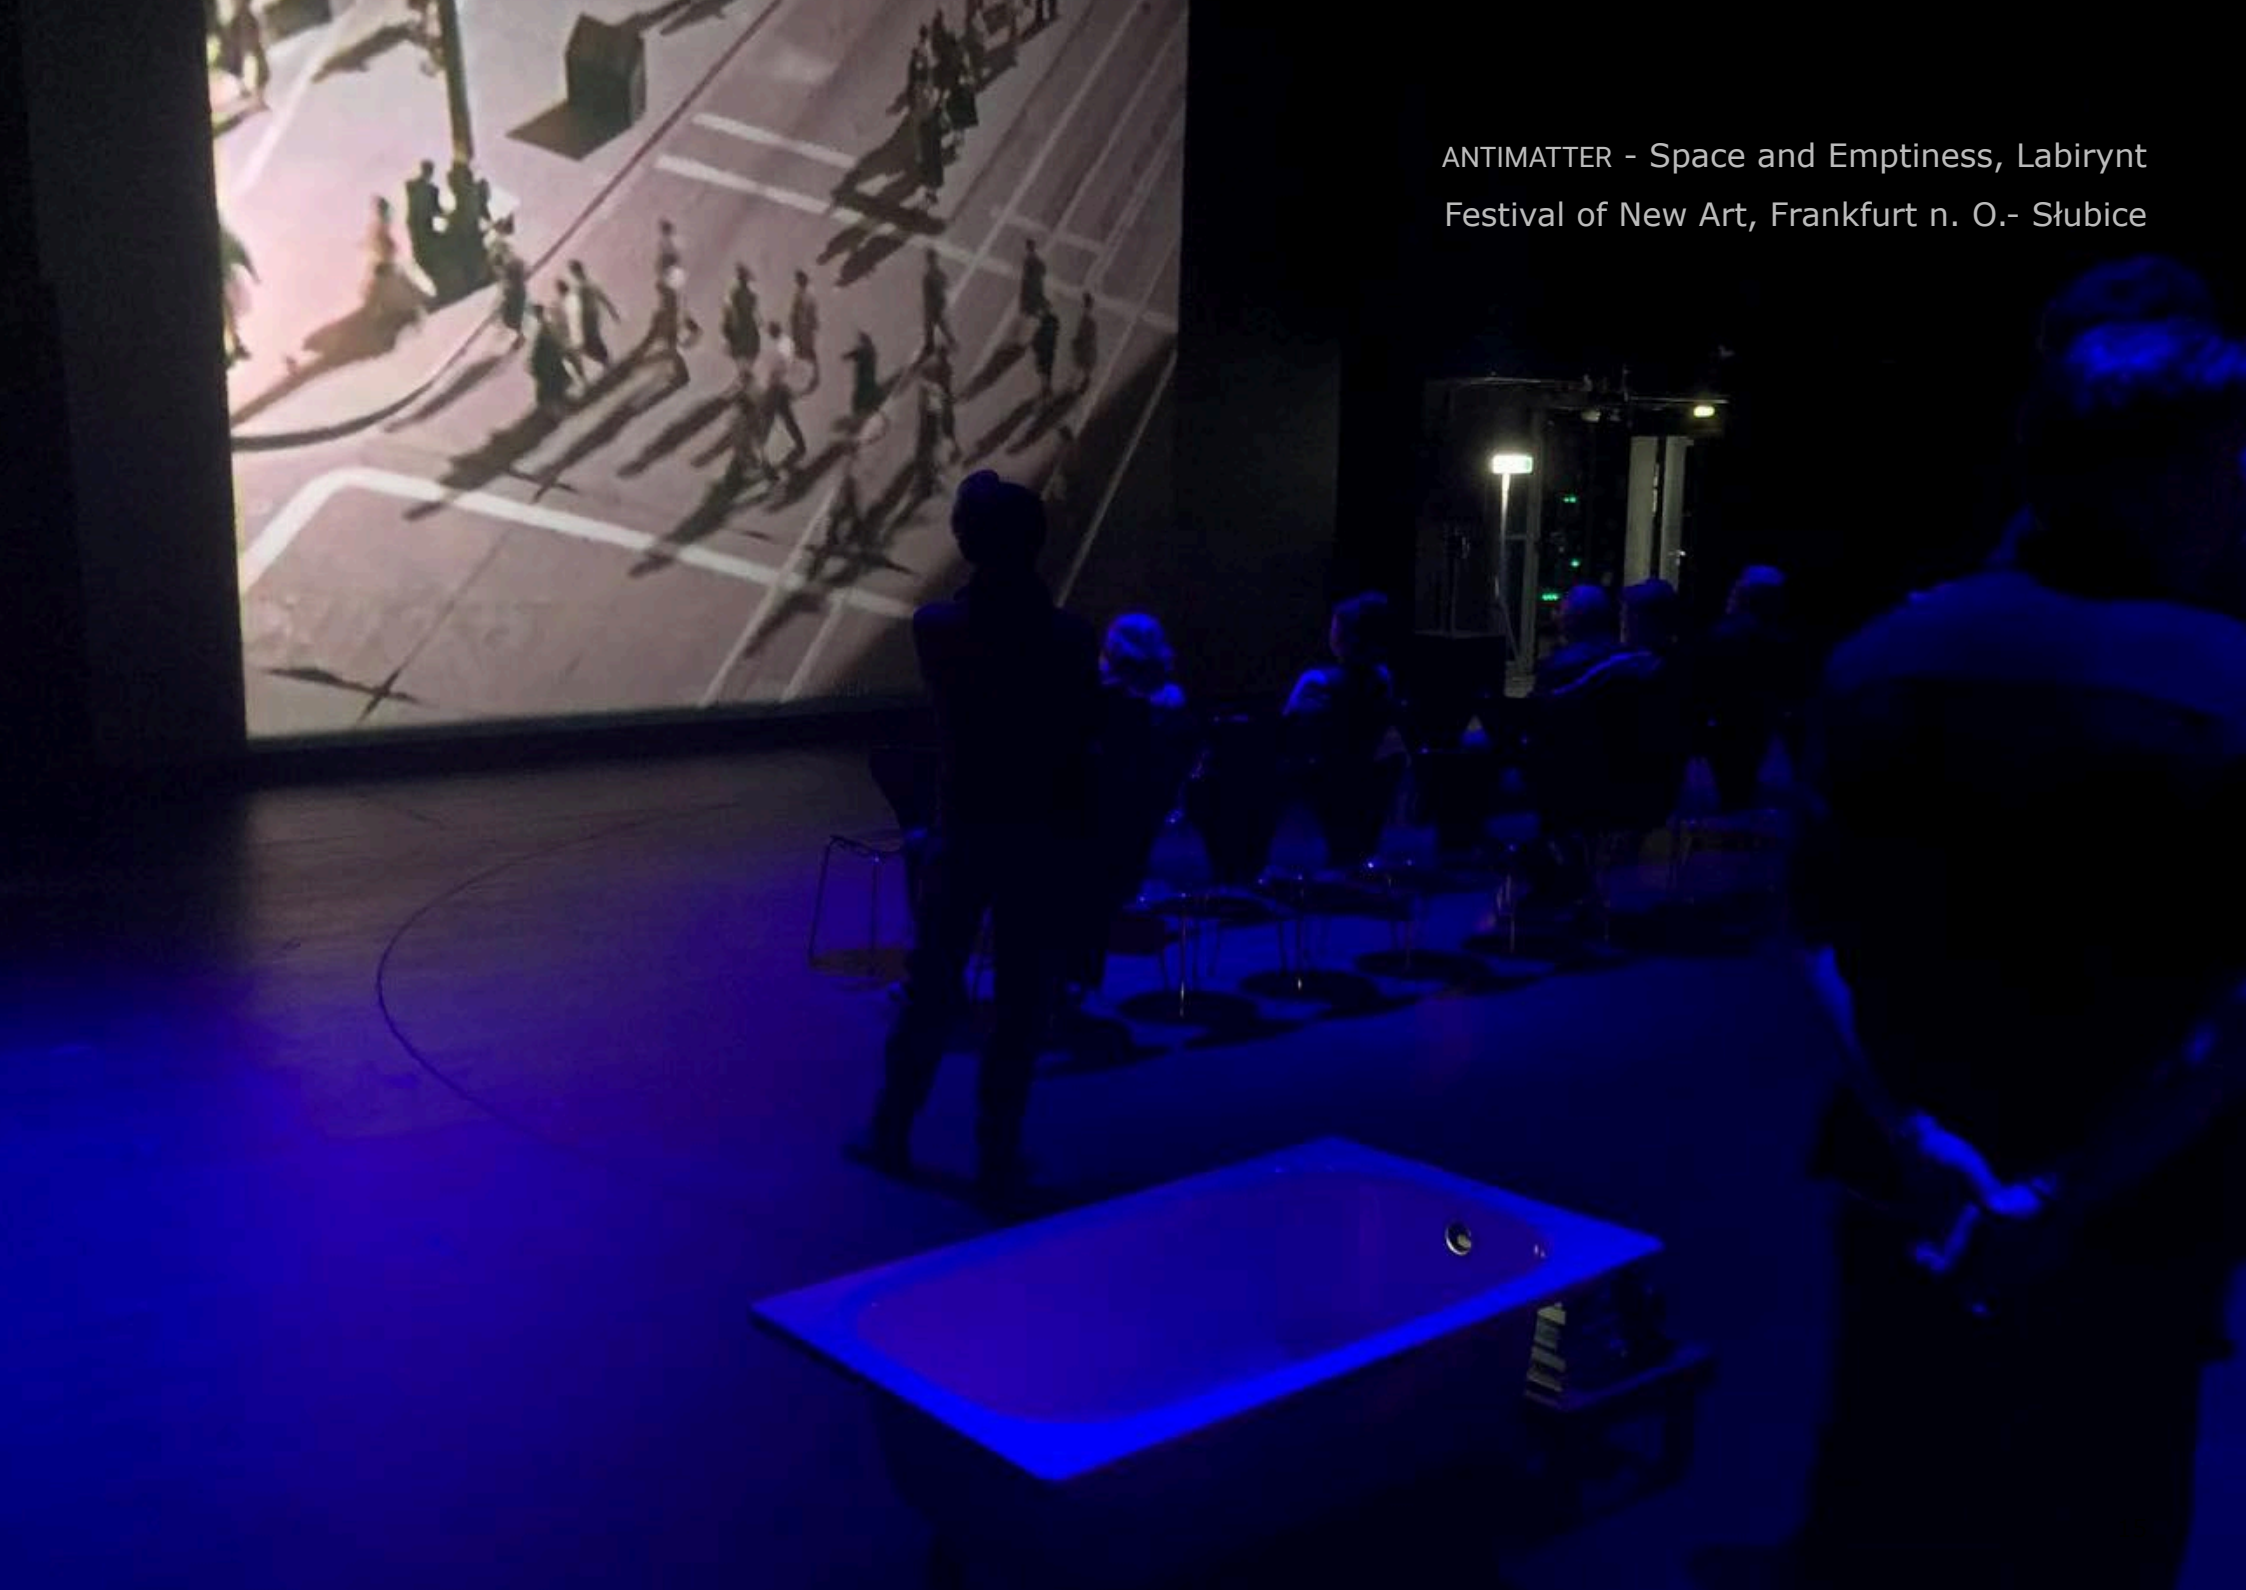

Basic implementation techniques:

- On-camera animation of loose materials (salt/sand etc.) and cutout,
- Stop-motion puppet animation.

Our studio allows students to find appropriate contexts to their art practices. We do not only hold classes, meetings, and consultations, but we also organise workshops and art journeys to many parts of Poland and the whole world. We have worked in New York, Zurich, London, the isle of Rugen, as well as in small enclaves located in Poland and Czech Republic.

We keep on searching for new ways of experiencing art. We want to make sure that exhibitions and events we propose are something 'more' – an intermedia experience consisting of the concept of presentation but also its art-direction, performance and a special atmosphere.

Intermedia Studio II – Space Transformation / Knowledge of matter

Head of Studio:
prof. dr hab. Andrzej Syska

Tutor:
dr Magdalena Starska, ad.

Location:
building C / room 203

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

In our studio, we focus on transforming space. Our curriculum includes teaching about the definitions of space and the ways of transforming it. We are interested in space as a 'real' three-dimensional environment that is a platform for objects and events developing in time. We also explore space in its virtual aspect, with all the consequences it has. Our teaching methods consist of lectures, outdoor workshops, and group or individual consultations. Students who wish to join our studio are expected to have basic knowledge of digital recording and editing. Our students learn how to recreate a given space and how to propose an individual way of transforming it.

Intermedia Studio III – Video
/ Art activities in public space

Head of Studio:

prof. dr hab. Marek Wasilewski

Tutor:

mgr Karolina Kubik

Location:

building C / room 206

Erasmus+ credits:

5 ECTS

Exhibition

The curriculum of our studio focuses on the study of very diverse contemporary artistic practices. We encourage discussions on the definition of art in the time of cultural, social, and technological changes.

The aim of our studio is to familiarise students with the possibilities of the art of moving image in a digital environment. We draw from the history and aesthetics of video art. At the same time, we search for new artistic, social, and emotional contexts in which video art could develop and critically analyse its own language, different from the aesthetic codes of cinematography.

We are interested in a work of art as a misunderstanding. We discuss its social and cultural effects over the past forty years. The task of the studio is to enable its participants to learn the specifics of the intermedia character of art with active participation in shaping the media space in their artistic and social dimensions.

Every year we also conduct a film seminar analyzing the relationships between artistic creativity and broadly understood reality in the context of public and private space.

Topics:

I. social life of animals - suggested for BA students

II. to bestialize / to animalize (in search of positive aspects of the term) - suggested for MA students, larger research based project

III. antidocumentary / nondocumentary

IV. anti-monument

In our studio we focus on broadly understood contemporary art. We critically analyse the latest tendencies, trends, as well as artistic and post-artistic practices. In this context, we are particularly interested in the medium of sound, both in relation to what is visible, invisible, and completely inaudible. Sound is what we primarily focus on. Each year, our studio has one 'main theme' that we work on. We also accept themes proposed individually by students.

Experimental Film Studio I - Performative and film activities /
Performance & Cinematic Practices

Head of Studio:
prof. dr hab. Izabella Gustowska

Tutor:
mgr Izabela Sitarska

Location:
building C / room 203

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

The schedule of classes includes lectures, exercises, corrections, consultations, external workshops, individual and group projects. Activities in the studio focus on experiencing mixed reality together; interactive, virtual, immersive, fragmented, collectively building a hybrid multimedia form. Work on individual projects or group projects lasts throughout the academic year, provoking constant thinking, development, and change, starting from simple recordings (text notes, drawings, photographs, videos, video performances, experimental films), ending with individual or joint in-depth realization.

Experimental Film Studio III
– Animated Film

Head of Studio:

dr hab. Piotr Bosacki, prof. UAP

Tutor:

Location:

building C / room 206

Erasmus+ credits:

5 ECTS

Exhibition

The curriculum of our studio involves searching for new formal and structural solutions concerning films and works of art in general. Our efforts focus on the idea of a work of art understood as a homogenous structure. A plant grows from a single grain and thanks to that all its parts, although different, are linked together. Similarly, a work of art, although composed of many elements, can be, at least in a certain sense, a homogeneous structure, as each element gives birth to another. It is very difficult, or even impossible, to build such a 'monistic' work. As we attempt to achieve this goal, we have a good chance to make inventions in the form and structure of film.

Experimental Film Studio IV - Art film. Structure of cinematic image

Head of Studio:
dr Anna Konik, ad.

Tutor:

Location:
building C / room 204, 206

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

The studio puts emphasis on film space, and on creating multi-channel installations related to an extended spatial order in the field of visual art. Feature and socially oriented films, creative essays, art documentaries and other hybrid single-channel forms are developed in the studio. Individual and social space is examined. In the process, the awareness of the empathic tool, which is the camera, is expanded. In-depth artist based research (ABR) is at the heart of each implemented project. The assumption of the studio is interdisciplinarity and transdisciplinarity.

FACULTY OF ARCHITECTURE & DESIGN

Department of Architecture & Urban Planning

Architectural Design Studio I

Head of Studio:
mgr inż. arch. Hugon Kowalski

Tutor:

Location:
building H / room III/4

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

We design, talk and ask questions. Architectural Design Studio I is a space where architecture meets art.

During classes, we focus on individual problems and solve them together. Based on sketches, thoughts, photographs and analysis of the study area, we provide answers and try to choose the most reasonable one. We share knowledge and compare it with other projects in the world of art.

Classes are conducted on the following issues: housing (single-family house, materiology, high-cube multi-family project, economical apartment layouts, synthetic presentation in B1 board format), architecture, urban planning and integrated design (possibility of conducting national and international competitions, as well as the possibility of developing existing facilities on the map of Poznan).

Architectural Design Studio II

Head of Studio:
mgr inż. arch. Piotr Kamiński

Tutor:

Location:
building H / room III/1

Erasmus+ credits:
5 ECTS

Exhibition

The architecture design studio is focused primarily on residential architecture and designing buildings integrated with the dense urban fabric of the city.

We try to explore design proposals simultaneously on multiple scales, while also referring to a theoretical layer of the architectural practice.

You will have an opportunity to design single family and multi-family housing, as well as mixed use developments, taking into account the multi-layered reality of XXI century architecture within densely populated cities.

An eagerness to deep dive into theory as well as a drive for creating clean and convincing geometry is required, alongside intermediate skills in architectural design, visualisation and 3d cad software, preferably in the BIM.

Architectural Design Studio V

Head of Studio:

dr inż. arch. Natalia Regimowicz

Tutor:

mgr inż. arch. Jarosław Wroński

Location:

building H / room I/2

Erasmus+ credits:

8 ECTS

Exhibition

The way classes are conducted in the Studio emphasizes the friendly atmosphere of studying, conducive to intellectual discussion, exchange of experiences and creative exploration. The methodology of the classes allows for the identification of key dependencies that are important for the creation of an architectural work. It aims to stimulate creativity and creative imagination as an important element of architectural creativity. Particular attention is focused on the originality of thinking and the activation of imaginative awareness as an important element of creating innovative design solutions. The method is part of the so-called "Situating Learning Approach", assuming that the knowledge acquired by students is contextual and depends on the situation in which it is used.

Sustainable Architecture
Workshop

Head of Studio:

dr inż. arch. Tomasz Piwiński

Tutor:

Location:

building H / room I/2

Erasmus+ credits:

8 ECTS

Exhibition

The studio offers the opportunity to develop knowledge in the field of sustainable design. As part of the semester tasks, students design buildings with almost zero energy demand. The exercises are preceded by a series of lectures introducing the principles of constructing energy-saving and passive buildings. Leading trends, materials, technologies and examples of projects are discussed. The appropriate location of the building, shape of the body and structure, selection of materials and technological equipment enable a significant reduction in energy consumption and its production from renewable sources.

In our projects, we pay close attention to social problems, non-exclusion, inscribing the object into a historical and cultural context. We try to minimally interfere with the natural environment and landscape.

Studio of Interior Design and Exhibition Spaces

Head of Studio:

dr hab. Agnieszka Meller-Kawa, prof.
UAP

Tutor:

Location:

building B / room 211, 212

Erasmus+ credits:

5 ECTS

Exhibition

The thematic scope of projects created in the studio includes design of residential and commercial interiors, as well as exhibition spaces. The interdisciplinarity of exhibiting requires the design to start with the creation of a coherent functional concept of the facility or exhibition (exhibition scenario). Therefore, in the studio, great emphasis is placed on the initial phase of the project, which is the development of the concept of activity in the designed space, and in the case of the exhibition space, also on non-visual elements, such as multimedia (sound, image), elements of choreography, interaction idea, etc.

Basic knowledge of technical drawing, modelling in 3D applications is required.

FACULTY OF ARCHITECTURE & DESIGN

Department of Bionics & Landscape Design

Bionics Studio I

Head of Studio:

dr hab. Izabela Idzikowska-Bzdreęga, prof. UAP

Tutor:

mgr Joanna Sichel

Location:

building A / room 202

Erasmus+ credits:

6 ECTS

Exhibition

The aim of the course in the 1st Bionics Studio is to equip students with practical methodological tools that will introduce, improve and facilitate the design process both at the initial stage of searching for inspiration, as well as creating a concept and thinking about the form and structure of the project.

Based on the analytical, thorough observation of the natural world, taking into account the changes and phenomena taking place in it, the consequence of which is a specific shape, geometry, construction, we introduce students to a rich source of examples and ready-made solutions that are the reason for further design work. The result of this work is an object that meets the functional, structural, ergonomic and material assumptions.

The multiplicity of nature's responses to various physical, environmental and biochemical problems allows students to choose the most convenient issue that they will not only rationally analyze, but also engage their emotions, curiosity and sensitivity.

Bionics Studio II

Head of Studio:
prof. dr hab. Wojciech Hora

Tutor:
dr inż. arch. Filip Żuchowski

Location:
building A / room 203

Erasmus+ credits:
6 ECTS

Exhibition

The aim of education in the Studio is to develop an individual method by the student - a design and analytical procedure as a process of conscious creation identical to design and other types of design activity. A process determined by the student's individual characteristics, such as: sensitivity, intellectual level and developed ability to understand construction issues. We assume that after completing the course in our studio, students will be equipped with knowledge that will make them creative personalities, capable of building a new reality, understanding its essence and equipping them with tools to navigate among various media, means of expression and technology. Architecture - as it can be defined - is the art of organizing space and giving it a function by means of construction, thought and material. The above factors also overlap with the historical, cultural and economic layers. Getting to know the above assumptions of the presented definition and understanding them through an analytical and design exercise is to activate a set of skills necessary to understand the surrounding material space.

Space Interpretation Design Studio

Head of Studio:

mgr inż. arch. Łukasz Spychaj

Consultant:

prof. dr hab. Andrzej Wielgosz

Location:

building A / room 204

Erasmus+ credits:

6 ECTS

Exhibition

Design is a complex cause and effect process based on the analysis and interpretation of the context. The designer, in opposition to the artist, is not a one-man institution making authoritarian decisions, but only a link in a complex process. In the Space Interpretation Studio, we look for right proportions between individual creative thought and limitations resulting from the context and the environment. It is important to us to undertake the current problems - we live in a time of radical capitalism that deepens the climate crisis and intensifies international migration - these are factors influencing the undertaken design issues and adopted functional and material solutions. In the design process, we put emphasis on the aspects of sustainable development, climate and ecology, but also local traditions and cultural identities, combining them with the latest knowledge in the field of low and high-tech solutions. We are trying to disrupt the existing student- professor relationship in favor of a common, egalitarian conversation in an open group where anyone can speak freely. During the classes, we will try to level individual skills in using design tools, presenting analog and digital techniques.

Landscape Structures Design Studio

Head of Studio:
prof. dr hab. Piotr Szwiec

Tutor:
dr Patrycja Mikołajczak, ad.

Location:
building B / room 201

Erasmus+ credits:
6 ECTS

Exhibition

We would like all our students to have the opportunity to choose their preferred subject topics according to their own interests and meeting their personal requirements.

When conducting classes incorporating mainly courses in interior design as well as landscape design, our main focus is put on their inherent characteristics and aspects, however, we try not to firmly stick to tight constrictions, categorisation and solely subject-based framework.

As a result of that approach, a variety of miscellaneous projects are created during the course, including interior design, small architecture, public as well as private spaces. Moreover, we are also open to taking parts in contests and competition entries.

Studio work during the course emphasises discussion, relationship-building skills, partnership and mutual cooperation rather than focusing only on project itself and sheer content-based qualities. We find these attributes and skills to be equally important in a professional designer.

Landscape Interior Design
Studio

Head of Studio:
dr Natalia Rozmus - Esparza, ad.

Tutor:

Location:
building B / room 201

Erasmus+ credits:
6 ECTS

Exhibition

Studio programme is based on a wide range of activities related to bionics.

Inspiration drawn from the world of nature, its forms and mechanisms occurring in it, constitute the source of drawing analyses, which in the next stage are subjected to spatial transformations. Following Walter Gropius: "My favourite colour is multicoloured", we inspire students to search for their own ideas. The topics often based on concepts related to geometry and construction, are the results of our own inspirations. By building the ability to understand the studied phenomena, an analytical and design process is carried out, the effect of which is the implication of the principle of action on the implementation of a spatial form. The resulting creations are identical with the student's original design attitude and represent his or her individual scope of skills and acquired knowledge.

The studio educates young designers for professional and responsible design practice worldwide. The didactic base of the studio is stimulating imagination, sensitivity and creativity of young design adepts with simultaneous solutions finding. We pay great attention on raising the awareness of the aesthetics of designed products. In the Studio students learn the methods and the language of communication with producers and users of the designed products. In the studio we perform all levels semester topics for students from various faculties as well as diplomas, contests and research topics which assume co-operation with various institutions and industries for MA design students. Students have a chance of extending their knowledge and gaining professional experience in mutual relationships.

Humans, together with their psychophysical and cultural complexity, are a subject for all the project activities. Through contexts interaction and responsible actions in our Studio we search for unconventional project solutions. The created product form is a "sign" informing the user about the product's destination and way of using. In the studio we perform diploma, contest and semester topics as well as research topics which assume co-operation with various institutions and industries. A great attention is paid on extending students' knowledge in the fields of widely understood innovations and material experiments in human context.

The most important value of the Studio is a respect for the project's recipient. It is a conscious creation of the needed, thoughtful and "responsible" objects. Students conduct the analysis of the aim of their designed projects, considering the needs of the final utilitarian destination and given stages of the product production process. We conduct diplomas, semester and contest projects. Projects are created in the process of mutual discussion and argument, based on the graphic illustration and spatial models.

Interdisciplinary Design

The studio carries out projects related to a wide range of problem areas. The key role is always played by the user along with his or her needs, possibilities and limitations. As part of their semester and diploma theses, students willingly undertake, among others, issues related to human mobility, health, or social problems and cultural differences. During the implementation of projects, attention is paid primarily to ergonomic aspects, which determine the universality of the solution, intuitive operation, communicativeness of the form and adequate to the assumptions production technology and materials used. Classes are consultative.

Initial design as a compulsory subject for first-year students is an indispensable element of preparing young people for studies in the field of broadly understood architecture, interior and exhibition. The didactic process that takes place during the first two semesters is to introduce students to a specific course of reasoning, discussion, observation and articulation. As part of the initial design, students raise a number of theoretical issues and make the first attempts to put the studied issues into practice. The pre-design program is divided into two thematic parts, similar to the first and second semester of the first cycle studies. The first part involves an analysis of a natural phenomenon, its description and spatial interpretation. In the second part, students will learn about the basic elements of the design process on the example of solving a simple residential function.

In the studio, we try to look for BEAUTY, that is, the internal ORDER of things, space and forms. We study the cultural contexts of architecture, we refer to classical categories. We learn to notice and value existing values in order to maturely create new ones. Tasks concern the creation of space, architecture, interior design, interior details, exhibitions. Understanding the unity of space and the relationship between external and internal form in architecture and the relationship between structure, function and form is essential. Topics related to adaptation, activities towards and within historic buildings are often discussed. The ability to read the context and engage in creative dialogue is a priority. The issues of the exercises take into account the year of study, the field of study, and the students' own predispositions. Topics are formulated in such a way as to enable students to express themselves as individually as possible.

In our studio we teach how to design public spaces that are based in architectural space. The way we think about design is shaped by the nature of civilization and its evolutionary character. Contemporary architecture must various needs. It is not only a symbol of the present, but is also attempts to predict the future. In our studio we design outdoor and indoor spaces taking into account the principle of “overlapping impact”. It will enable an open artistic expression. These assumptions allow to define topics in a way that individual artistic preferences of students can be expressed in their works, so that everyone has a chance to find their own way of expression through a given project.

The program of the interior design studio IV for students of bachelor's and master's studies focuses on the relationship between the created space and its addressee. The above obliges us to constantly verify the meaning of concepts that are important to us, analyze the properties of the context of the place, proportions and scale. Creative mastery of various design tools gives you a chance to perform tasks from a wide range of utility functions, such as elementary - private, through public, commercial and exhibition, to experimental. Competences and design experience are improved during consultations in the studio or during offsite workshops. The substantive range of topics is expanded by reading the proposed bibliography and successively collected multimedia materials.

Exhibition Design Studio II deals with topics related to the broadly understood exhibition - from commercial, through art exhibitions, to issues of problem and experimental exhibitions. The premise of the studio is that every student has a chance to encounter the most diverse issues, which is why both semesters cover topics from "opposite poles". The aim is to sensitize to the recipient's issues, the specificity of the issue raised and the spatial context in which the student proposes his exhibition. The overriding issue is the understanding of the viewer-object / exhibit-idea-space-time relationship, as well as the ability to communicate the design concept in a communicative manner, which in itself is a form of exhibition. An important value of the didactic process is the connection between the aspects of architecture as an interior and architecture as an external form, which in particular concerns the design of exhibition stands that constitute street furniture. It is therefore a training in the perception of the relationship of contexts and their mutual meanings.

The studio deals with topics related to the broad issues of architecture, interior design and exhibitions. The assumption of the program is the development of a unconstrained by stereotypes creative personality. We expect students to be open to contemporary human needs. We encourage to take up provocative, controversial and socially important topics. We also pay attention to the inseparable relationship between function, form and the environment. There are two thematic groups of design exercises in the studio. They concern issues related to exhibitions and both public and private spaces. In addition to the innovativeness of the concept, we focus on the development of thinking about the technical side of the project.

The studio deals with topics in the field of interior design, using ecological solutions.

The recent climate changes and general poor health conditions (both physical and mental) make us realize that the path taken by humanity is wrong. Society should redefine its needs and treat the natural environment as a co-investor. The designer can be a co-author of beneficial climate changes. In the Ecological Design Studio, we discuss architect's tools to design without harming nature. We use materials of natural origin and the zero waste principle. We are looking for solutions that generate and save energy.

Second-cycle students pursue research topics related to ecology.

The works of our students win prizes in competitions such as Font is not a font (a list of the best diploma works of graduates of art and design universities), AQ forms, etc. The results are published in publications related to design.

In the studio, we undertake design topics related to the broadly understood public space meant for social integration, creating opportunities for positive interaction. The role of the designer is to create a space that will attract and hold people: a space that is attractive, interesting, alluring, and at the same time meets the conditions related to functionality and ergonomics. In our studio, we also undertake design problems related to public space, in which we emphasize the functionality of interiors with a clear and optimally developed space with equal attention to aesthetic values, details, and appropriate selection of materials. Our goal is to create spaces marked by the creator's own unique personality. The studio often cooperates with external stakeholders.

Stage Design Studio was established in 2005. From the very beginning, the studio's program has involved interdisciplinary work in the studio, but also the implementation of projects in other spaces, in cooperation with students of other universities, and with artists. Our students carry out their artistic concepts in cooperation with theatres and other cultural institutions. Classes consist of individual conversations, corrections, and discussions. We assume that students who join our studio are interested in theatre, including experimental theatre, and in finding individual ways of artistic expression. We allow them to design and carry out their own artistic concepts. We prepare students to design for different types of scenes: conventional, outdoor, non-theatrical, post-industrial spaces, and for performance activities.

Architecture of the Show Studio (previously called " Stage Design Studio II") is primarily a design studio, i.e. the priority in working with students is to thoroughly work out the idea and concept in the form of a design record, before we bring about the practical implementation of the project. The nature of design issues, taking into account the participation of recipients and viewers in the planned projects, along with accompanying scenarios (eg theater, concert, exhibition or "occasional" scenography) requires a lot of practical and design experience of the teacher. My many years of work as a designer - interior architect and set designer working on important theatrical stages as well as a teacher, helps to achieve this condition. Examples of very positive effects of the assumptions adopted in the operation of the studio are the career paths of some of its graduates (e.g. dr Elżbieta Cios or dr Ewa Mróz, who are currently assistants in clothing and costume design studios) or awards and distinctions received for female students at important national scenography competitions. The awards should be mentioned here. Jerzy Moskal awarded in competitions organized at the Center of Polish Scenography (a branch of the Silesian Museum in Katowice) for scenography projects for Anna Kaczkowska (2012), Ewelina Bunia (2016), distinction for Joanna Martyniuk (2017) and Grand Prix for Katarzyna Łęczycka (2018).

Thanks to an interesting program and extensive technical facilities, the studio has also been implementing many stage design activities in cooperation with various theaters, cultural institutions and festivals for several years. The studio also cooperates with many educators, artists and students of the city of Poznań, inviting them to outdoor events and activities. Unique Fashion Design Studio is focused on the idea of uniqueness as a field of exploration of a universal creative medium.

Interdisciplinary communication develops awareness in the student's overall work process and indicates its role as an inspiration in broadly understood design. The modern transfer of knowledge using modern methods opens up new possibilities while preserving the traditional "fashion craft" in a new edition. The awareness that fashion is one of the few fields whose development and mechanism of action is based on constant change for the sake of change itself and replacing it with something new leaves room for mutual use of available resources. The aim is to indicate the overall design process Idea - Process - Implementation. The term "unique" specifies an individual approach to clothes, inscribed in the broadly understood art of fashion.

It is a place where different visions of thinking about clothes meet. The studio implements a propaedeutic program introducing students to the issues of designing clothes by learning about the objective determinants of the basics of design. Assumptions: building a form and clothing as a spatial form.

The aim of activities undertaken in the studio is to launch creative thinking in the field of widely understood stage costume. The design and implementation work is focused on the form of a costume in relation to the slogan or text. The subject matter stimulates the search for new interpretations and solutions. The context of the scene and the viewer are considered. Semester practice is designed to: activate spatial thinking, sensitize to details and their importance on stage, develop the ability to appropriately use matter, structures and colors. Based on conversations during corrections, the function of the costume in relation to the entire performance as well as the costume designer in the production team are determined.

Students carry out individual projects in a media of their choice and projects related to the studio topic. Currently, the Studio is developing an interdisciplinary project: Rhizosphere: Big Network of Small Worlds, which is inspired by research into the networked strategies of plants (Wood Wide Web) and the impact of this research on changing cultural paradigms, the development of our social ecosystems, and the relationship between the bio- and techno-spheres.

The studio's most important theme is Man and Object. Drawing tasks of the studio are related to the observation and creation of the theme of drawing – drawing a model and objects in different relations, including proportions and basic elements of composition. Issues such as: a point, a line, a surface, a blotch, an outline, texture, a colour, light and shadow are taken into consideration. A very important aspect is a constant improvement of the individual techniques and expanding the drawing medium. Within the framework of drawing classes there are also obligatory anatomy tasks, which are understood both traditionally and with reference to the drawing "language". Besides studio tasks, students can implement their own themes.

In the Studio we propose exercises that lead to a broader painterly conduct and perception of reality. As a consequence, we propose a greater richness of ways of building a work of art, through the possibility of using various materials and techniques. A situation or a problem presented in this way can more concrete show the process of creating art and gives us many possibilities, such as different materials, techniques, and ways of perception. So the program is about developing a different kind of thinking, by using not always "painting" techniques, but by going farther and reference painting objects, collages and assemblages.

In the studio, the main areas of interest are: Artistic and workshop activities covering issues related to social changes in Poland and in the world. What are artistic interactions? These are all creative efforts between creative people and their audience. The tools of communication in the studio are mainly workshop activities, artistic actions using various media - intermedia, traditional, innovative and interactive. In the studio you will be able to face issues related to the methodology of conducting workshop and artistic activities, you will learn how to plan educational space and prepare comprehensive creative and didactic projects. The main topics that we will consider this academic year are: stereotypes, exclusions, crossing borders, sexual revolution. The choice of artistic and workshop means will depend on the concept of the project. An important element of work in the studio is cooperation between students. All prepared workshops will be carried out with selected target groups. Currently, we cooperate with, among others: the State High School of Art. Piotr Potworowski in Poznań, the State High School of Fine Arts named after Leon Wyczółkowski Foundation in Bydgoszcz, the Niewyprawaj mi Foundation, the Fiona Foundation, the Jak Gallery, and the Curatorial Center No. 3 in Poznań.

The typeface design is a discipline that requires specific predispositions and determination. Each student has his/her own artistic temperament, and although not all of them can find themselves in this field, experiences learned in our Studio will be useful in any work associated with broadly understood graphic design. We teach not only an artistic sensibility to letters but also organisation of work, clarity of visual language, systemic thinking and consequences in searching for the most optimal solution. The open formula of the Studio allows to take up topics to which students, regardless of their skills and experience, can implement their own concepts and therefore feel sheer satisfaction with working with letters. Our curriculum stimulates students' creativity. It also involves a very individual approach. It results in individual variations of typefaces, based on simple ideological assumptions. On the other hand, extended families of typefaces created correspond to the functions defined in the design assumptions.

Latent Images Studio is a place of artistic experiments in the field of imaging forms related to the materiality and uniqueness of a photographic image. We are interested in processes and phenomena accompanying the creation of photography, as well as in (re)interpretation of existing visual materials and creation of original narrations in various forms of publishing.

Through experiences with photosensitivity, historical methods of imaging – starting from experiments related to 19th century photogenic drawings by William H.F. Talbot or camera obscura phenomena – we enable students to find themselves as pioneers of photography, learning the language of photography by experiencing its various forms. Following the fascination with the materiality of photography and its tradition, a photographic book has naturally appeared within the scope of the Studio's activities. For several years now, the Studio implements an editorial and publishing program -students prepare artistic photographic publications: photobooks, zines, of unusual and original character.

The reality around us is a stage. Everything is set up, around the corner of each street we find a different situation. Everything is constantly changing, alive and constantly flowing with its own rhythm - what is predictable and obvious, and what unexpectedly surprises us. The set changes, the "actors" play their scenes and the light changes constantly. Like in the theater. Creative exploration in the studio is located between the use of existing situations and staging activities. Searching for an individual area of activity means discovering your own sensitivity. The motif becomes a pretext for creative experiences.

Selected topics implemented in the studio concerned creative explorations, among others: the following entries: Gravity, Horizon, Mirror, Transparency, Apparitions, Research and Experiments.

A parallel form of working with students in our studio are outdoor photography trips.

NeoPhotography Studio is maintained in an intermedia character. The specificity of the curriculum combines the photographic image with other forms of artistic expression (media), such as drawing, spatial forms, video, graphics, sculpture, painting and design. The aim of the classes is the free use of the medium of photography as a contemporary language of artistic and design creativity, as well as creative transgression and expansion – in technical, aesthetic and artistic terms – of the traditional ways of conceiving and producing photographic images.

Currently, general issues constituting the programme of the Studio include relations between image and object, image and text, anthropology and semantics of images, archetypes and symbols in contemporary culture, memory and subconsciousness: individual and collective, poetry as an objection, other cultures as a source of inspiration, creative aspects of relations between tradition and contemporaneity, „Third Reality” (a hybrid of reality and virtuality), individuality and collectivity in the culture of fluidity, violence of images in pop culture, reinvention of the object.

The character of the Studio and the issues it deals with are based on the understanding of photography as strongly connected with reality in its broadest sense. The photographic image is treated as a „report from presence” and a record of relations with the world.

Activities in the Photography in Contexts Studio focuses on creative possibilities of various forms of image recording and their functioning in today's communication technologies. The photography technique is treated as a starting point for the experiment, working on individual formal, structural and semantic solutions. Parallel to the area of activities and analysis is the post-internet condition of art and communication. Dominance of cyberspace rules develops a number of different ways of imaging, gradually releasing art from media determinism.

We ask old questions, trying to find new answers. What do we see when we look at a photograph? How to materialize / mythologize postmedial reality?

We are looking for new questions in action. We supply the cybersphere in images and extract it (is it a magic trick?) the new materiality.

We learn the practice of focusing attention and ordering the meaning at the touch of many realities.

The contexts for the Film Activities Studio are the cinematic avant-garde, artists' cinema, video art, experimental film, performance video, as well as contemporary expressive and technological phenomena, i.e. digitally generated images, 3D animation, artificial intelligence, virtual reality.

The medium of the moving image is treated as a dynamic, complex and multifaceted cultural phenomenon, within which those studying will have the opportunity to experiment, develop concepts, identify means of expression and refine the form.

Activities with film/video/moving image have been present among those studying in the Department of Photography for many years, and due to the specific photographic context, often lead to unique results in the form of advanced video/film productions. The aim of the studio's activities will be to foster these possibilities and thus help the formation of unique artistic attitudes.

FACULTY OF PAINTING & DRAWING

Department of Drawing

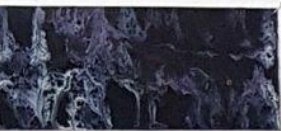

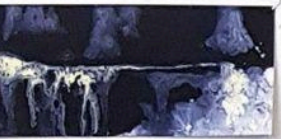

Introduction of the First Drawing Faculty at the Painting and Drawing department at Magdalena Abakanowicz University of the Arts Poznan

First Department of Drawing offers wide educational opportunities in the field of drawing; reliable possibilities of getting to know the contemporary and historical contexts of art through the creative expression of relations and influences of the drawing consciousness on sociological, cultural and scientific relations. Assuming that drawing is the basic form of analyzing the perception of space and its history, students at the First Faculty of Drawing have an opportunity to encounter elementary concepts related to study human anatomy, as well as the broad programme, intellectual and workshop potential of each studio taking the place at the First Drawing Faculty. This diversity of the offered programs is a strong advantage. Experiences in drawing and around-drawing activities such as cover-reveal, continuum, in-out, far-close, together-apart, symmetry or its lack provide yet another aspect of educating young people: closely related to the modern times, where decision-making and risk-taking prepare the students to work after graduation. It is important to understand that drawing learning in terms of spontaneous perception, support creation of space for a human being with a dynamic psychological field leads to the feeling of time, and critical art practice. Along with the belief that the medium implies the material dimension of the statement, and the artistic statement as a whole is characterized by a mental dimension, the programs of the First Department allow for using multimedia expressing the message (for older students).

A wide spectrum of programs of the Faculty: from studio life, human body drawing, studying still-lives to reinterpreting reality and communicating contexts by discussing projects, collecting data, analyzing and debating – can be expressed in a variety of media.

In each of the existing Departments of our University – the germ of the concept begins with drawing.

Education in the Studio is intended to intensify manual and technological skills as well as learning the rules of composition. There is a strong emphasis for developing an individual approach, with topics that students come across, searching for ones unique medium and adequate tools and techniques.

An artist thinks in pictures. A drawing is the first, most natural impulse and a forthright depiction of the artist's sense of his surroundings, the situation itself and his emotions at the moment. It can be a note – a concept for a painting, sculpture, or spatial composition yet to be developed. It can also be a whole, finished artwork – the accomplishment of the artistic vision. All that defines drawing as the most personal display of the artist's sensitivity and individual predispositions.

The curriculum of Drawing Studio IV is principally based on tasks and exercises triggering the activation of imagination, fiction, the construction of what eludes the simple check of what's given and obvious. I see the use of imagination as an opportunity for an alternative, rich and unbridled artistic experience. Knowledge of different categories of expressing the language of drawing, significance of transformation, intellectual and emotional content of a drawing, imagination – Imagined – Expressed, language of a drawing installation: transformation – interdependence, necessity and compatibility of the entire system, all the elements that make up an inseparable whole, subjects and exercises – mandatory and elective. The grade is based on the following components: class attendance, student's involvement, creation of assigned subjects and exercises, the student's social stand, the final result of work.

The purview of drawing is constantly expanding. It assimilates elements from other disciplines and media, and correlates with the blurring of the boundaries between them. In Studio VI we place no limit on the choice of tools or media. In addition, we explore drawing through various ways of thinking, and as a way of thinking. The aim is to have the ideas and materials inform and permeate each other.

The studio supports individual exploration and research through interdisciplinary drawing. It is a place where drawing might approach and enter an expanded field: experimental and open. The fact that the studio consists of students from various faculties - including those students from other countries - is an advantage to a studio of this kind, and contributes greatly to the work that takes place in the studio and its critical discussion.

Through group discussion you will learn to address questions independently, to perceive things openly and critically, and to articulate those thoughts and impressions within your own work and that of others.

The studio operates during the hours allocated for drawing studios and as a free-choice studio. Open to undergraduate and graduate students of all faculties and years, Study in English students, Erasmus exchange students. Undergraduate and Master's diplomas can be completed in the studio.

Drawing – Another Way of Thinking

We explore drawing through various ways of thinking and materials. There is no limitation in the choice of tool and / or surface. Installation drawings, objects, sounds etc... are as welcome as works on paper, on walls or in any space. We want ideas and materials to inform and permeate each other. We aim to open the imagination and to breach limitations in drawing. We focus on each individual's way of thinking and each individual's practice. We are open to your own proposals for work. The basis of education is academic work and corrections based on it, in the form of discussions on problem solving. Efforts are made to unleash student's initiative, student's own valuable proposals are welcomed.

Moreover, the topic of proofreading is not limited to a narrow studio programme, but takes into account a broader view of culture. The student's individual, personal expression and the development of his or her artistic imagination are encouraged. The initial period of work is aimed at getting to know the interests and sensitivities of students. This results in the need for flexible, individualised application of the programme. The programme analyzes formal and workshop means as carriers of artistic expressions directly related to the student's attitude. On this path, the programme introduces the students to the issues of art through studio practice and enables them to determine their own position. The studio is open and is not associated with any specific artistic convention or formal method.

"Without forgetting what has already happened in art, what is happening in it at the moment, at the same time we intend to look into the future, into unnamed and undiscovered scopes, announcing zones of new inspirations, new methods of creation and creative challenges."

The constantly evolving DRAWING embedded in the centuries-old heritage, thanks to the friendly "head and hand" ways of writing (traditional and experimental) allows for free interpretation of the real world and the one that is created only through the human imagination. Art today, in contrast to structural, academic divisions, avoids borders regardless of its type and discipline, existing in the sphere of mutual influence and inspiration. Its potential is of particular interest to us.

The 14th Drawing Studio, which is part of the 2nd Department of Drawing, provides students with knowledge of the broadly understood anatomy of drawing and the issues of its current, ideologically and formally diverse presence in contemporary art. The studio is a forum for the exchange of thoughts, drawing practice, a place for analyzing artistic concepts and a space of tolerance for various creative attitudes. In this atmosphere, we try to convey the full spectrum of drawing competences as well as all the skills to use it as a contemporary medium of creation - being aware that DRAWING is a process, a process of experiencing, perfecting the idea and form of a work, experimenting, discovering errors and eliminating them over time.

The studio is open to all methods of artistic expression - including the most non-classical ones: drawing performance, installation, video art, etc., as well as those that cannot be pigeonholed into a specific discipline, also those hitherto unrecognized, which in a moment will create the most current "nerve" of contemporary art.

The optimal solution for the 14th Drawing Studio is when there is an intriguing "drawing intention" and a properly found form behind the creation of each work.

Drawing as experiencing the world.

Visual experience seems to come first. From it, a reflection on the world can arise, which is sometimes determined by many complicated and often impossible to pinpoint factors such as our personality, memories, experience... I would like drawing to become a place of experiment, a testing ground, a place of successes and also failures, that naturally accompany the creative process.

Drawing as a form of artistic expression can become a kind of asylum or escape, it can be a place to manifest yourself, your views or attitude to the world.

Studies should be the beginning of discovering your own artistic identity. That's why it is so important to acquire the skills needed to realize your artistic goals during your studies: develop your drawing skills, learn how to compose, notice spatial relations, and observe forms of light and shadow.

The studio's program offers students a wide spectrum of exploration of painting as a language of visual expression. What is most important to us is stimulating and shaping the imagination, which conditions all creation and accompanying students on the way to building their own artistic language. Both of these aspects are indispensably related to the acquisition of manual skills. The studio's program is therefore constructed on the basis of both study tasks, such as still life, nude or landscape (especially for first-year students) and slogan topics proposed by the teachers, as well as based on the students' own concepts.

Moreover, one of the tasks carried out in the studio throughout the academic year is the analysis of various aspects of folk culture through the prism of art. Each year the topic is about a different region. What is very important, we care about the individual approach of students to the issue related to folk culture. Therefore, the analysis is supported each time by its earlier exploration (presentations, lectures, etc.), as well as research in a given area as part of joint, studio plein-air.

People studying in the studio can get acquainted with a variety of painting techniques. They are also supported in their own, also experimental searches, regardless of the painting medium and interests. What is very important, we focus on the individual development of students and students, while emphasizing that the studio is a common space for creative work for people studying at all faculties of UAP.

Painting is one of the most cognizable and rooted in the tradition areas of art. Therefore, there is an almost infinite range of possibilities to use of his treasured achievements. At the same time painting is a field where clue of imaging is constantly redefining or stretching in semantic and technical way. Therefore we try to give students as wide as possible offer with multiple cognitive tools. In this meaning the most important is ability to see and understand reality, but manual skills during contact with the nature is our mandatory as well. That's why on the beginning we focus on study task like: act, portrait, still life, landscape. Topics cover issues connected with social life, politics, religion, and of course the art – its role in the world today. To the most popular topics in last year's we can include: "Media hype", "Is the hazard in art?", "What's up in politics?", "Olympic Games", "The street", "Conventional – unconventional", "I like it, I interested, It's what I'm looking for", "Public space – private space", "Lampedusa – utopia of freedom", "Intertextuality of art". The program of this studio is based on the premise that the most important objective of art didactics is to care about the growth of students' individual relationship to art and their self-reliance in the discovery process of fine art subjects. Painting is a domain of emotions, thinking and self-expression. It requires personal engagement, creativity and imagination, but also responsibility and self-criticism. The quality of art-work depends on the authenticity of the artist's creative motivation and thus on the truthfulness of his issue with the world. The pillars of the painting craft are: drawing competencies, sensitivity to colour, ability to formulate an artistic plan and knowledge of technique. The craft of painting is also based on an openness to new visual technologies, sensitivity to the iconographical layer of pictures, knowledge about classical and modern art, awareness of the need to redefine the notion of "picture" and that of deepening form in relation with the contemporary world. The realisation of specific semester and annual tasks is connected to other kinds of activities, namely discussions, reading, meetings, artistic and scientific trips as well as outdoor sessions. Complementary to the program is participation in extra-curricular initiatives outside of the University and in public space projects that enrich the artistic standpoint with values of social commitment, personal non-profit and responsibility.

10 ECTS

Exhibition

The program of the studio oscillates between activities embedded in the context of a specific situation/place, called site specific, and interactive activities. Students, especially those who have already acquired skills related to modelling, building, constructing objects/sculptures, can, indeed should, in the next step, experience the study of the space in which they function and in which they program the existence of the sculptural objects they create. It is the contexts that create meanings, therefore the relationship of the object with the environment, both physical and cultural, requires special awareness, a sense of scale, material and form, sensitivity to the attributes of space and its impact.

Exhibition

The aim of our studio is to teach students to create actions and activities based on the recognition of structural and social spatial conditions. It revolves around concepts of space, place, and time. In our teaching process, we take into account the importance of permanent forms and the role they play in modelling human behaviour. Humans, however, are the basic matter of every action. The body and the figure assume the function of the subject and the object. Another aim is to familiarize students with the mechanisms of creating a visual language that is characteristic for performance art. We construct a sign around the performer taking into account such notions as body, figure, silhouette, trace, memory. One of the basic concepts that we analyze in our studio is time. We perform in public space, which allows performers to become initiators of social facts.

Magdalena Abakanowicz

Magdalena Abakanowicz (1929-2017) was a Polish sculptor and textile artist. She is known for her large-scale, abstract sculptures, often made of wood or fabric, which explore themes of human form and movement. Her work is characterized by a strong sense of rhythm and a focus on the material's texture and form.
